SAFEGUARD YOUR FAMILY

The fast-paced lifestyle inherent in urban settings like Lagos often necessitates the presence of domestic staff, particularly for working couples with young children.

As an employer of domestic help, ensuring their current health status becomes pivotal in safeguarding the well-being of your household.

This precautionary measure helps mitigate potential health risks that might otherwise compromise the health and safety of your home.

Domestic Staff screening tests serve as a crucial health assessment conducted to ensure the well-being of household staff before they integrate into the home environment.

Beyond assessing their health, these medical screenings offer invaluable insights into the staff's overall health status, potential threats, and risks they might face. They empower them to proactively identify any health issues and plan treatments if necessary.
